COMMUNITY RESOURCE GUIDE 2017-2018

Compiled by the Interpreters' Coalition of Springfield-Greene County

Interpreters' Coalition

Children acquire fundamental concepts through active participation with their environment. "Success in learning requires the learner to be at the center of the experience, making connections across disciplines and also across contextual settings. Children need to be presented opportunities to learn the same material in different settings and through different lenses." Sneiderman (2013)

While the school classroom remains the primary instructional center, out-of-classroom experiences can bring a sense of wonderment and curiosity about the world to young learners. The Springfield area is rich with community resources that can provide educational experiences for students that might not otherwise be available to them.

In a truly collaborative effort, the Interpreters' Coalition utilizes the varied resources of our community toward field education and hands-on learning experiences. The Coalition was formed to help meet the educational needs of students and currently consists of partner members ranging from non-profit organizations to governmental agencies. This group of informal educators represents cross-curricular interests and expertise including science and the environment, history and social studies, communication and technology, and the arts. The Coalition supports professional development opportunities designed to highlight the variety of resources available throughout the city of Springfield and surrounding region.

About WOLF: Wonders of the Ozarks Learning Facility (WOLF) is a school of choice created by Springfield Public Schools for 5th graders with a special interest in nature and the outdoors. The school was developed in collaboration with Johnny Morris Foundation and Bass Pro. Students attend WOLF each day Springfield Public Schools are in session. Their physical classroom is at the John A. and Genny Morris Conservation Center, 500 W. Sunshine. However, they spend a substantial amount of time engaging in hands-on inquiry “in the field”. Throughout the school year the students are exposed to almost every public conservation area, park, and wild places within 25 miles of Springfield. Two WOLF teachers instruct two classes of 5th grade students in the same core curriculum as other Springfield 5th graders. The difference is that all subjects are taught in the context of nature and conservation education.
